

The café Daniel Moser is historically documented to be Vienna's first coffee house originating in 1685.

Founded by an Austro-Armenian spy called Johann Diodato, who received the privilege to publically serve the Turkisch drink „chava“ from the Empire Leopold I, in compensation for his espionage work during the second Turkish siege.

The first Viennese Café opened its doors on January 17th 1685.

Daniel Moser is the name of the major of Vienna, who reigned the city with breaks in the period from 1610 to 1637.

He lived in Rotenturmstraße 14, the original place of the very first coffee house in Vienna - today's Café Daniel Moser.

Daniel Moser since 1685

Es war ein angenehmes Café, warm, sauber und freundlich, und ich hängte meinen alten Regenmantel zum Trocknen an den Garderobenständer und legte meinen abgetragenen und wettergegerbten Filzhut auf die Ablage über der Bank und bestellte einen Café au Lait. Der Kellner brachte ihn, und ich nahm mein Notizbuch und einen Bleistift aus der Manteltasche und begann zu schreiben.
